This changes contain only modification to entity and there is only one column modified. I read this question : Showing Database Changes in ListView. Its on solved problem, but my requirement is different. My code is, sqliteDatabase = SQLiteDatabase.openOrCreateDatabase(DB_NAME, null); SQLiteDatabase db = sqliteDatabase; ContentValues value = new ContentValues(); value.put(COLUMN_NAME, newEditText.getText().toString()); db.insert(TABLE_NAME, null, value); Hope, any one help me to find out solution. A: Put your data to a list and send it to the list adapter, add a swipe view on each row to show the changes. March 2010 Shopping. Potting. And GTVP... Given the other big news in the recent past, it's not surprising that the attention of the PSAG seems to have shifted away from the daisey do's and towards more domestic news. The long-stalled discussion on the "potting and drainage" of the garden is finally happening, and what a topic it is. Over the last four years of D.C. Powerlines, we have discussed the subject at length. Although some of us have always believed it should be a priority, others have been skeptical. I'm not so sure that skeptical is necessarily the c6a93da74d
